1. At Marcel Boussac's request the French daily L'Aurore published in a recent edition the first of a series of articles by former Prime Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin.
2. Following the appearance of this article there were so many vigorous protests from readers and friends of the editor-in-chief Robert Lazurick, and from the editorial staff, that it was decided not to publish any more of the articles. This decision angered Boussac to such an extent that on 10 October he informed Lazurick that he intended to cancel his purchase of the paper which he is legally able to do since final sale papers have not been drawn up.
